2. BA, Genetic Engineering and Biotechnology, Faculty of Science Jordan University of Science and Technology, 2005.

MA. Thesis Title: The Effect of Thermal Manipulation during Embryogenesis of Broiler Chicks on Body Weight and Thermotolerance Acquisition Post Hatching.

Summary:

Thermal manipulation in which the embryos are exposed to high or low temperature during certain periods of broiler embryogenesis has been addressed as a technique to enhance body weight and to improve thermotolerance acquisition of broiler chickens. The combination between temperature, timing and duration of manipulation play a major role to be determined for thermal manipulation, which underlines thermotolerance improvement.

This study was conducted to elucidate the effect of thermal manipulation at 38.5°C and 40°C for 3, 6 and 24 hour during late embryogenesis (E16-E18) on broiler.
